234. Go gliding (pilots fly an unpowered aircraft known as a glider).

235. Go base jumping (use a parachute to jump from fixed objects, such as a bridge).
This can be more dangerous than jumping from a plane.

236. Ride a gyrocopter.

237. Travel by seaplane.

238. Fly in an open-cockpit airplane (like the planes built during WWII).

239. Go Bungee Jumping

240. Go Hiking in the Rainforest: There are rainforests with extraordinary flora and fauna all over the world. You can go hiking in the rainforests of Panama, Costa Rica, Maui, Honolulu, Borneo, and so on.

241. Go Fire Walking: Walk barefoot over a bed of hot embers or stones. This is a popular activity in motivational seminars.

242. Ride a Mechanical Bull: Mechanical bulls were originally intended for rodeo competitors in training, but now you can readily find them in bars and restaurants. They replicate the sensation of riding a bucking animal, such as a rodeo bull or horse.

243. Race a Sports Car: This can include stock car racing--which is primarily raced on oval tracks--, drag racing--where the objective is to complete a given straight-line distance--, off-road racing, and so on.

244. Participate in The Rickshaw Run: Take part in a 5000km journey across India's gnarliest roads in a rickshaw.

245. Go On a Cross-country Motorcycle Trip: If you love motorcycle riding and the great outdoors, going on a cross-country motorcycle trip is a great way to get to know the US.

246. Go Rock Climbing: Rock climbing has been described as mountaineering, combined with strength training, yoga, and summit fever. It requires balance, strength, and flexibility.

247. Try Indoor Climbing. Indoor climbing walls are artificially-constructed walls attached with holds that mimic actual mountain walls. It's easier than outdoor rock climbing, since you're in a controlled environment.

248. Climb Mount Kilimanjaro: Mount Kilimanjaro, in Tanzania, is the highest mountain in Africa.

249. Climb Vinson Massif: Climb Vinson Massif in Chile. This is the highest mountain in Antarctica.

259. Break a Guinness World Record: Create the world's largest voodoo doll, participate in the largest tug-of-war, become the oldest wing-walker . . . break a world record and contact Guinness World Record to have it recognized.

260. Walk Through a Corn Maze: During the Autumn months many farm fields carve the stalks of corn in order to create mazes you can walk through. Or, you can simply walk through a labyrinth, such as the labyrinth at Chartres Cathedral near Paris, France. Here is a worldwide locator of labyrinths which you can use: The World-Wide Labyrinth Locator.

261. Drive down Route 66: US Route 66 is colloquially known as the "Main Street of America" or the "Mother Road". Drive southwest from Chicago across eight states to Los Angeles, passing small towns, and natural wonders including the Grand Canyon and the Mojave Desert. If you can stand the heat, do it in a convertible, with the top down.

262. Ride a dune buggy in the desert: A dune buggy is a recreational vehicle with large tires designed for use on sand dunes or beaches.

263. Go dirt biking: Dirt bikes are built for riding cross-country and through rough terrain such as sand, dirt, mud, and rocks.

264. Go kart racing: Karts, or go-karts, are small, open, four-wheeled vehicles which are raced on dedicated kart circuits.

443. Brazilian Carnival - The Biggest Party on Earth

444. The Ati-Atihan Festival: A feast held every January in honor of the Infant Jesus in the island and town of Kalibo, Aklan in the Philippines. The festival consists of tribal dance and music, with the participants sporting indigenous costumes and weapons.

445. The Day of the Dead: The Day of the Dead (El Día de los Muertos), is a Mexican holiday which focuses on remembering friends and family members who have died. The celebration occurs on November 1st, and 2nd. Traditions include placing sugar skulls, marigolds, and the favorite foods and beverages of the departed on private altars, as well as visiting graves bearing gifts.

446. The Galway International Oyster Festival: A food festival held annually in Galway, Ireland during September, the first month of the oyster season.

447. Carnival in Venice: This carnival--held in Venice, Italy-- is a spectacular and colorful revival of traditional masked balls and elaborate costumes of the 18th century. It starts around two weeks before Ash Wednesday and ends on Shrove Tuesday (Fat Tuesday or Mardi Gras), the day before Ash Wednesday.

448. The Songkran Festival: This festival is celebrated in Thailand as the traditional New Year's Day from 13 to 15 April. The most obvious celebration of Songkran is the throwing of water. Thais roam the streets with containers of water, or post themselves at the side of roads with a garden hose and drench each other and passersby.

449. The Glastonbury Festival of Contemporary Performing Arts: Commonly abbreviated to Glastonbury or Glasto, this is the largest green field open-air music and performing arts festival in the world. It features contemporary music, dance, comedy, theatre, circus, cabaret and other arts. The festival takes place in South West England, six miles east of the town of Glastonbury.

450. Mardi Gras in New Orleans: The motto of Mardi Gras (French for "Fat Tuesday") is "Laissez les bon temps rouler!" or "Let the good times roll." Spectacular parades with beautiful floats begin two weeks prior to Mardi Gras Day. Be sure to catch trinkets or medallions being thrown from the floats.
